"The attention to sonic nuances and genre-bending character of the songs, along with beautifully structured melodies will definitely appeal to fans of "alt-j" and "Radiohead". However, the band's approach to songwriting itself is unique and escapes easy comparisons." – Loudness Blog

Berlin-based Atomic Fruit combines dreamy, psychedelic rock with electronic beats and immersive soundscapes. With members from Sweden, France and Italy, the group formed in 2021 after a serendipitous meeting at a SUUNS concert and their energetic live shows quickly became a frequent spectacle of the Berlin underground scene.

Their 2023 debut vinyl Play Dough introduced their eclectic mix of synths, guitars, trumpet and samples to an international audience as songs from the album landed on editorial playlists in Spotify, Apple Music and Tidal and saw airplay on Berlin radio stations.

In 2025, they released their sophomore album Sketches of the Moon, showcasing a more organic, introspective side of the band. Drawing inspiration from desert blues, noise and the soundtracks of David Lynch, the album blends pitch-shifted vocals, reverberant baritone guitars and further experiments with samples and electro acoustic effects.

Lyricaly Sketches of the Moon is honest and haunting, as in songs like Once and Tongue Tied, which evoke a certain uneasiness. The album is a musical coming-of-age that captures the complexity and simplicity of life, one song at a time, where each moment seems eternal as we experience it, while the past feels like a surreal, fading dream. From the laid-back desert blues of Sure to the nostalgic tape sounds of the title track and the crunchy modern-lovers aesthetic of Get Along, each track brings together different memories and genres.

Following the release show in Badehaus Berlin, the album quickly attracted popularity on streaming platforms, amassing over 300 000 streams in the first months, as the band performed live on RadioEins and toured across Germany and France.

In the fall of 2025, Atomic Fruit is going on tour in Germany, Austria, the Czech Republic, Denmark and Italy together with the Munich-based rock band Digital Carbs. In June, the two bands released the collaborative track Up and Away. On October 10th, Atomic Fruit will release their new single Hit The Ground together with a music video.
